mar soria presents an innovative cultural analysis of female workers in spanish literature and films drawing from nation building theories the work of feminist geographers and ideas about the construction of the marginal subject in society soria examines how working women were perceived as other in spain from 1880 to 1975 by studying the representation of these marginalized individuals in a diverse array of cultural artifacts soria contends that urban women workers symbolized the desires and anxieties of a nation caught between traditional values and rapidly shifting socioeconomic forces specifically the representation of urban female work became a mode of reinforcing and contesting dominant discourses of gender class space and nationhood in critical moments after 1880 when social and economic upheavals resulted in fears of impending national instability through these cultural artifacts spaniards wrestled with the unresolved contradictions in the gender and class ideologies used to construct and maintain the national imaginary whether for reasons of inattention or disregard of issues surrounding class dynamics nineteenth and twentieth century spanish literary and cultural critics have assumed that working women played only a minimal role in the development of spain as a modern nation as a result relatively few critics have investigated cultural narratives of female labor during this period soria demonstrates that without considering the role working women played in the construction and modernization of spain our understanding of spanish culture and life at that time remains incomplete
